Commissioner Norman J. Kennard

Norman J. Kennard was nominated to serve as Commissioner by Governor Thomas W. Wolf on Oct. 27, 2017 and subsequently confirmed unanimously by the Pennsylvania Senate on Nov. 14, 2017. His term will expire March 31, 2019.

Prior to his appointment to the PUC, Commissioner Kennard most recently served as counsel to Commissioner Robert F. Powelson, providing legal and policy advice on electric, natural gas, water, telecommunications and transportation issues.

Previously, Commissioner Kennard worked for 30-plus years in private legal practice, where he represented a highly diverse client base covering consumer and utility issues in the gas, water, electric and telephone sectors. He has experience across all regulated industries, in multiple forums, state and federal, regulatory and legislative, as well as litigation and appellate representation. During his time in private practice, he was also heavily involved in shaping the successful implementation of the Pennsylvania natural gas transportation reforms (the precursor to the Natural Gas Choice Act), the Chapter 30 broadband infrastructure renewal legislation, and the negotiation of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act and power generation contracts.

Commissioner Kennard began his career in public service, litigating public utility issues on behalf of consumers at the Pennsylvania Office of Consumer Advocate. Thereafter, he served as counsel to Commissioner Clifford L. Jones, advising him on regulatory issues, including natural gas competition, rate case reform and telephone deregulation initiatives.

Commissioner Kennard earned his law degree from the University of New Hampshire School of Law. He and his wife, Anne, reside in the Harrisburg area and are the parents of two adult daughters, Lauren and Sara.
