Pennsylvania Celebrates Law Day 2004
Honors the 50th Anniversary of Brown v. Board of Education Decision

The PBA and local bar associations will celebrate the fifth annual statewide Law Day program on May 17, 2004, with the theme “A Constitution for Everyone...Everyday,” commemorating the 50th anniversary of the landmark U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Brown v. Board of Education. This anniversary provides a special opportunity to emphasize freedom, equality and justice for all, the fundamental principles upon which our country was founded. This constitutional milestone also can serve to inspire lawyers, teachers and students to come together to discuss the complex issues facing today’s society such as diversity, equal rights and personal privacy.

As in the past, the PBA is creating a lesson plan book centered on this year’s theme to help lawyers, judges and educators teach students about the law. The book will be made available free-of-charge to all local bar associations at the end of January to assist with Law Day celebrations. Information about ordering the materials will be sent to all bar associations in early January.

The PBA encourages lawyers and judges to visit schools throughout the month of May to help mark this legal landmark. Law Day can help illuminate the role of law, advocates and courts in establishing and protecting our rights.

The PBA features a dedicated Law Day area on its Web site — www.pabar.org/lawdayinformation.shtml — to highlight county bar association Law Day activities, as well as to provide a list of schools, lawyers and judges interested in classroom visits, and general Law Day information. The site will be advertised to all schools. County bar associations are encouraged to submit information about their Law Day programs for publicity on the Web site. Please forward all information, including date, place, contacts, etc., by e-mail to Jennifer.Branstetter@pabar.org or by fax to 717-238-2342.

On May 7, the PBA will kick off this year’s Law Day celebration in Harrisburg with what will be an historic luncheon celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Brown v. Board of Education decision. The late Oliver Brown’s daughters, Linda Brown Thompson and Cheryl Brown Henderson, will be the featured speakers. The Brown daughters will chronicle the history of their family’s participation in the court battle and its impact on education and the civil rights movement. The luncheon will be held from noon until 2:00 p.m. at the Harrisburg Hilton & Towers.

The American Bar Association will also use Brown as a basis for Law Day activities, which include an “images of freedom” photography contest for students aged 12-18. Visit the ABA Law Day Web site at www.abanet.org/publiced/lawday/home.html for more information on the national campaign.

For Law Day-related questions, contact Jennifer Branstetter at the PBA at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2216, or by e-mail at Jennifer.Branstetter@pabar.org.

“Stepping Out” Deadlines Set for 2004

All county bar presidents, executive directors and secretaries will be contacted soon about their participation in the 2004 “Stepping Out” program.

The “Stepping Out” program is designed to help graduating seniors make the transition from the classroom to the “real world.” As part of the program, volunteer lawyers visit classrooms or are featured speakers at special assemblies. Topics include consumer credit, DUI, renting an apartment, voting and jury service. Many of the programs coincide with the observance of Law Day.

Since the program’s inception, over 200,000 “Stepping Out” booklets have been distributed. The PBA County Bar Services Department coordinates the ordering of the booklets and their distribution to local bar associations. Pages are reserved for each participating county bar association to include local information the association deems necessary or useful.

The Berks County Bar Association Young Lawyers Section originated the “Stepping Out” program and updates the booklet on a regular basis.

If you wish to continue participating in this program, if you would like to participate for the first time, or if you need a list of high schools in your county, please contact Dale Schell at the PBA at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2297, or Dale.Schell@pabar.org. Orders are due no later than Friday, March 12, 2004. The per-booklet charge this year is $.85.

Printing Schedule and Information

- Local bar associations can use a maximum of eight pages inside the booklet. There are four blank pages in the front and four blank pages in the back for local information.
- The front cover will be the same except for the name of the county bar association across the top of the booklet.
- The 29-page text of the booklet remains the same for all printings of this publication.
- Minimum order is 500 copies. The per-booklet charge this year is $.85.

- All local information must be camera-ready or typed and be received at PBA headquarters by no later than Friday, March 12, 2004. You are encouraged to submit your information prior to the deadline. We must insist that you pay close attention to this deadline.
- Printing of the booklets will take place during March and April.
- Booklets will be shipped to county bar associations in early April.
- Call Dale Schell at the PBA at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2297, with any questions.

Booklet Introduction

“When you step out of high school, will you step into a job, more education, marriage, or a combination of the three? Whatever your destination, you will probably be 18 years old when you begin. Eighteen may be more challenging than you think because at this age you are a “legal” adult, but not fully independent. Although you can now vote, marry without your parents’ consent, make contracts and be treated like an adult in court, you may not drink alcoholic beverages. What’s more, your parents will continue to have a guiding, supportive place in your life.

“With your newly acquired rights, you have certain duties and may oblige yourself legally to more than you realize. The Young Lawyers’ Section of the Berks County Bar Association has prepared this booklet to answer some legal questions and to raise many more. Knowing the answers is now less important than learning how to ask the questions. How do you borrow money? How can you avoid getting ‘burned’ with an apartment lease? Where do you go to vote?

“The articles in ‘Stepping Out’ are arranged with a view toward four kinds of relationships: (1) contractual (Promises, Promises); (2) personal (Close to Home); (3) adversarial (Getting Stuck [and Unstuck]); and (4) the individual in a nation (Making it Work). Be sure to look at the assistance agencies in ‘Close to Home’ for help in answering questions ‘Stepping Out’ doesn’t answer. If you ever have a serious legal questions, don’t hesitate to visit an attorney.”

PBA President Calls on Doctors to End Anti-Lawyer Campaign

Editor’s Note: In late October, the Pennsylvania Medical Society unveiled a public education campaign in many Pennsylvania counties featuring the theme “To lawyers, PA patients all look the same. Stop Lawsuit Abuse.” The campaign’s billboard advertisements feature photos of pregnant women or babies with the words “Potential Lawsuit” superimposed on them.

The following is a letter from PBA President Thomas M. Golden to the president of the Pennsylvania Medical Society in which Golden calls for an immediate end to the campaign.

October 29, 2003

Jitendra Desai, M.D.
President
Pennsylvania Medical Society
777 East Park Drive, P.O. Box 8820
Harrisburg, PA 17105-8820

Dear President Desai:

As president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, I am writing to request that the Pennsylvania Medical Society immediately cease its sponsorship of the public campaign carrying the message of “To lawyers, PA patients all look the same. Stop Lawsuit Abuse.” This campaign has launched a vicious and unwarranted attack on all members of Pennsylvania’s legal profession and our justice system. The physicians of Pennsylvania are using unreasonable tactics to vilify lawyers and to debase the principles of this nation’s Constitution.

This campaign attempts to dissuade the bringing of lawsuits by citizens who may have legitimate needs to secure the services of legal counsel. It is a basic and fundamental Constitutional right and privilege of every citizen of this country to seek redress through our justice system. Your campaign, which seeks to frighten and bully citizens into giving up this right, is morally offensive and misguided. At a time when Americans are giving their lives in service to their country in order to bring democracy to people around the world, it is a disgrace that the physicians of Pennsylvania would make a mockery of an individual’s right to seek counsel and protection through the legal system.

Your campaign also creates a sweeping and false impression that the lawyers of Pennsylvania are interested solely in finding victims of medical malpractice. As you well know, there are thousands of lawyers in communities throughout Pennsylvania who practice law ethically and responsibly every day. They protect individual rights and civil liberties. They represent people from all walks of life in criminal cases, in business and tax transactions, in personal matters such as Wills and estate work and in real estate transactions. They even represent doctors and hospitals in medical malpractice matters. It is wholly irresponsible and unprofessional on the part of the Pennsylvania Medical Society to mislead the public into thinking that lawyers throughout Pennsylvania look at every medical patient solely as an opportunity for a lawsuit.

For decades, the Pennsylvania Medical Society has been known as an organization that has stood proudly for the ethical practice of medicine. The Pennsylvania Bar Association also has embraced its role as the champion for the ethical practice of the law. As statewide professional organizations, we cannot lose sight of the fact that we should — and we must — put aside any of our professional differences in order to attain our common goal, which should be to protect the people of this Commonwealth. To protect the people of Pennsylvania, please remove these offensive and misleading advertisements.

Very truly yours,
Thomas M. Golden
Reverse Mentors Added to Provide Additional Online Research Seminars

County bar presidents recently received a letter from PBA Young Lawyers Division Chair Judge Todd Seelig detailing the expansion of the Reverse Mentoring Committee. The Young Lawyers Division has greatly expanded the Reverse Mentoring Committee — young lawyers who teach the basics of online legal research to any other attorneys who are not comfortable with computers or with the Internet. These young lawyers from all over the state help perform training seminars and are available for training and questions for Pennsylvania lawyers who want to use InCite.

Judge Seelig wrote, “As most of you know, one of the premier benefits of PBA membership is PBA’s free online legal research service, InCite. Thanks to the cooperative effort of the PBA and LexisNexis, this member benefit now provides the practitioner with the ability to perform online legal research searches on all Pennsylvania courts and statutes without any limitation on dates. InCite has been improved with the ability to perform ‘all-court’ searches, so that one can search a topic with one search in the Pennsylvania Supreme, Superior and Commonwealth Court libraries at the same time. Moreover, InCite includes searches of current federal courts cases and statutes and all 50 state libraries within the past five years.”

The Reverse Mentoring Committee has put on seminars in 19 counties in the last two years, most recently in Centre, Washington and Cumberland Counties. Seminars generally last one hour, and are approved for CLE credit.

If you are interested in the Reverse Mentoring Committee putting on a seminar in your county or providing training to lawyers in your area, please contact Elizabeth Kramer at the PBA at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2208.

Project PEACE Schools Selected

The Pennsylvania Bar Association and Attorney General Mike Fisher are pleased to announce that the PBA Law-Related Education Committee met and selected the final 12 elementary schools to participate in the 2004 Project PEACE training conference scheduled for March 12-13, 2004, in Altoona:

Carson Valley School (Montgomery County)
Good Shepherd School (Cumberland County)
Intermediate Unit #18 (a team of elementary schools) (Luzerne County)
Loyalsock Valley Elementary School (Lycoming County)
Lynwood Elementary School (Luzerne County)
Manchester Academic Charter School (Allegheny County)
Price Elementary School (Lancaster County)
Richard Allen Preparatory Charter School (Philadelphia)
St. Anastasia School (Delaware County)
St. Monica School (Chester County)
White Oak Elementary School (Allegheny County)
Wyoming Valley Montessori School (Luzerne County)

Project PEACE works to reduce conflict and violence in Pennsylvania’s elementary schools by teaching students how to discuss and mediate disagreements peacefully. It empowers children, who are still in their formative years, with important life-skills that promote constructive communication, problem-solving, critical-thinking and self-esteem. Children govern behavior in their classrooms by serving as mediators and using the mediation process. With the help of neutral peer mediators, conflicts can be settled in a positive manner, benefiting the school climate as a whole.

During the training, school teams, which include local attorneys, will be introduced to the peer mediation process and receive instruction in such areas as adjudication vs. mediation and diffusing conflict situations. At the end of the training, schools write their own mediation plans, which are introduced to their local schools. At home, the schools then select and train their student mediators, with the assistance of their attorney partners.

Bar associations interested in working with one of the schools should contact PBA Pro Bono Coordinator David Trevaskis at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2236. For more information about Project PEACE and other law-related education programs, visit the PBA Web site at www.pabar.org/educationprograms.shtml.

Bucks
People’s Law School
After a two-year hiatus, the Bucks County Bar Association and the Bucks County College have re-launched their People’s Law School with a revamped format designed to be more convenient and consumer-friendly. Now instead of enrolling for all courses offered over the eight weeks, residents can choose to enroll in any or all courses. Courses this year include parental liability, wills and elder care, criminal law, family law, consumer law, employment law, school law — parents’ rights in this age of “zero tolerance” — and real estate law. Previous law school topics such as tax law are no longer being offered after being deemed too complex for the time available; personal injury law is no longer offered because many lawyers offer free consultations in this area.

Clearfield
Legal Eagles
Members of the Young Lawyers Division of the Clearfield County Bar Association finished seventh in the nation in the American Bar Association’s 2003 Law Day Activity Awards — the only rural or Pennsylvania program mentioned — with their newly-expanded Legal Eagles program. The goal of the meeting was to communicate and exchange information, as well as encourage discussion of key issues between both parties.

People’s Law School
The Montgomery Bar Association’s Young Lawyers Section sponsored a People’s Law School that began on Oct. 6 and ran each Monday through Dec. 8, at the Montgomery County Community College. All the tuition raised through the course materials fee will benefit foster children in Montgomery County.

The Ginsburg Award honors excellence in legal writing and analysis and will be presented annually to a local second- or third-year law school student who has submitted the best law review-quality paper on a topic related to rights, privileges and responsibilities under federal law. Youth Mentoring Program
Judges and lawyers of the Westmoreland Bar Association are partnering with Big Brothers/Big Sisters in a mentoring program at the Westmoreland County YMCA Emergency Youth Shelter. A temporary, residential care facility, the shelter houses, counsels and educates teens who are declared dependent by the judicial system and placed at the shelter by court order.

Free Medical/Legal Services Clinic Opens in Hazleton

By Bernard Walter, Pennsylvania Bar Association
Pro Bono Award winner

Imagine lawyers and doctors working together for the common good instead of attacking each other over the medical malpractice crisis, and you will capture the unique nature of a new initiative in Hazleton. The Lower Luzerne Bar Association has created a new vehicle for its members to render pro bono legal services to various members of the Hazleton community in a free, non-sectarian medical/legal clinic hosted by St. Gabriel’s Church, Hazleton.

This past summer, I began talking with St. Gabriel’s Monsignor Michael Delaney about adding legal services to the free medical services clinic run by Dr. Anthony Veglia and parish nurse Nan Smith. The clinic began providing free medical services this spring, primarily to Spanish-speaking people. I saw the Hazleton clinic as the perfect spot to replicate the free medical/legal clinic I had helped to set up in 1996 in Shavertown.

The legal side of the clinic was organized in August when Monsignor Delaney and I met with Charles Petrillo, North Penn Legal Services; Tom Kennedy, Kennedy & Lucadamo; and David Glassberg, president, Luzerne County Lower Bar, to discuss the practical details of setting up a legal clinic. Among the issues discussed and resolved were processing procedures and documentation, malpractice coverage, staffing issues and case referral methods to private practitioners. One month later, President Glassberg met with the Lower Bar members to seek their approval of this innovation and to seek volunteers among the 42 members present. Glassberg received unanimous approval of the plan and the agreement of every attorney present to participate as pro bono volunteers for the clinic. The bar association is creating a flexible schedule for volunteers as the clinic initiates publicity to make the public aware of the medical and legal services now available.

The first dual function clinic took place on Oct. 7, with five attorneys present including Glassberg, Petrillo, Brian Price, Jerald Wassil and myself. Every lawyer brought skill and a commitment to public service to the clinic. Price, a lawyer at Dougherty, Leventhal & Price, also brought his experience as a Peace Corps volunteer in Central America to the session. Wassil, married to a Spanish teacher, added his experience from a practice that includes immigration law. Spanish-language skills and immigration law expertise are important at this clinic because of the large number of Hazleton workers and their families who speak only Spanish.

The Hazleton Medical/Legal Clinic offers monthly service the first Tuesday evening of every month. The legal side of the clinic serves everyone who comes to the clinic on a first-come, first-served basis. The legal clinic deals with whatever problems the visitors bring, including landlord-tenant problems, child support troubles, unemployment insurance coverage issues, estate planning, criminal defense, small business concerns, consumer issues and more.

The clinic handout states:
Our non-sectarian goal is to provide legal services to good people who:
1. Are unable to pay for such services in the private sector;
2. May be alienated from the traditional justice system;
3. Have a small problem warranting prompt preventative care;
4. Would benefit from candid discussion with legal counsel; all without obligation, cost, or strings attached.

The legal clinic is not designed to handle active pending litigation or to undertake actual representation beyond what can be done in the clinic counseling context. Some problems or protracted conflict situations demand the more comprehensive services appropriate for an attorney of record. In such situations, the visitor may be referred to private counsel with knowledge in the needed area of the law. The legal clinic staff may also assist in referring the visitor to local counsel who may be willing to offer services at reduced fees.

The legal clinic relies upon the voluntary donation of time by local attorneys who have sufficient general background to respond to a foreseeable range of problems. Advice is given based upon the information visitors provide and reflects only the opinions of the volunteer attorney with best wishes for a favorable outcome, but without any guarantee of any particular results.

Pro Bono Spotlight

Pro Bono Bankruptcy Project Launched at Judge’s Prompting

At the March 5 meeting of the Dauphin County Bar Association Bankruptcy Section, newly-appointed bankruptcy Judge Mary D. France emphasized the need for pro bono assistance. She explained that from time to time, the U.S. Bankruptcy Court is faced with the problem of pro se debtors whose cases are too complex to be administered fairly and effectively without an attorney. Although these debtors’ needs are serious and their resources limited, many of them are not eligible for legal services.

In the past, the court has attempted to steer these cases to counsel willing to handle them on a pro bono basis. There has not, however, been any formal program to recruit the assistance of members of the bankruptcy bar who are willing to take on pro bono cases. Through DCBA Bankruptcy Section Chair Robert Bein’s leadership, DCBA is working with Judge France to launch a trial project to address that need. The DCBA is developing a list of bankruptcy lawyers who are willing to accept pro bono referrals directly from Judge France. Lawyers from “lower-tier” counties (Adams, Centre, Cumberland, (Continued on Page 12)

Because of the extraordinary cost per reader, and in order to be good stewards of member dues, the PBA will no longer provide the ABA Bar Leader magazine to county bar leaders. Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lebanon, Mifflin, Montour, Northumberland, Perry, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union and York Counties) are also asked to consider participating in the project.

Judge France will contact lawyers on a rotating basis and ask them to assist a debtor in need of a pro bono attorney. A large number of registrations will avoid placing a burden on those who step forward. Judge France will periodically forward the names of the attorneys who accept referrals to their local bar associations so that the attorneys receive appropriate credit for their pro bono service.

Please contact Robert Bein at (717) 237-5544 or Sandy Ballard, DCBA, at (717) 232-7536 regarding the pro bono bankruptcy project.
