Aug. 1 Deadline for County Bar Participation in Statewide Public Education Campaign on Educational Rights

County bar associations are invited to partner with the Pennsylvania Bar Association during October 2014 for a statewide public education campaign about protecting the education rights of children.

The campaign, which is free to all county bar associations, will address the special education rights for children with mental or physical problems that hinder their development and for children with outstanding intellectual and creative abilities.

The campaign is modeled after successful previous statewide initiatives on reporting child abuse, credit rights, identity theft, wills, real estate, child support and elder law.

The campaign is slated to run Oct. 6 through Oct. 19, beginning with a news conference in the state Capitol. Through a partnership with the Pennsylvania NewsMedia Association, advertisements will be placed in newspapers throughout the state during the campaign and a toll-free hotline will be available for citizens to request free brochures, one titled “Education Rights for Students with Disabilities” and one titled “Education Rights for Mentally Gifted Students.” The brochures also will be available for downloading free from the PBA website at www.pabar.org.

Participating county bar associations will be encouraged to hold events throughout the two-week period as part of the campaign. County bar associations can voluntarily support the program through public presentations and other efforts. The PBA will provide a booklet of ideas for organizing an education event and generating media interest.

The effort is being conducted under the direction of the PBA Community and Public Relations Committee and is being funded by the PBA and a grant from the Pennsylvania Bar Trust Fund.

County bar associations interested in participating in the statewide campaign are encouraged to contact PBA Communications Manager Jeff Gingerich at 800-932-0311, ext. 2216, or jeff.gingerich@pabar.org by Aug. 1.

PBA to Launch Casemaker, Free Online Legal Research Tool for PBA Members, on Aug. 1

Beginning Aug. 1, PBA members will gain access to Casemaker as their free-with-membership online legal research tool. Casemaker, a national leader in legal research, will replace the current InCite program.

“A team of PBA members assisted us with a review of Casemaker and rated it highly for its comprehensive libraries and easy-to-use suite of research tools,” said Francis X. O’Connor, PBA president. “Casemaker also offers several additional excellent benefits such as the CiteCheck feature that provides reports on whether case citations continue to be good law.”

Not only can Casemaker assist solo and small firms and government entities, it can also meet the needs of Pennsylvania’s large law firms.

The PBA has posted a link to a series of helpful video tutorials on the PBA website homepage to help familiarize members with Casemaker.

With the move to Casemaker, the PBA joins a consortium of 24 other state bar associations and two major metropolitan bar associations who offer this robust legal online research benefit to members.

PBA members should not be misled if contacted by any vendor claiming that the PBA is discontinuing its free-legal-research benefit. Members will continue to receive this valuable member benefit with Casemaker.
The Pennsylvania Bar Foundation presented its 2014 Louis J. Goffman Award to volunteers of the Butler County Consumer Credit/Residential Mortgage Foreclosure Diversion Program, also known as the “Credit Crunch Collaborative” during the PBA Annual Meeting in Hershey on May 15. Butler County Judge Marilyn N. Horan, who has overseen development and implementation of the program, accepted the award.

The Goffman award is named for a late PBA president and recognizes individuals and organizations committed to pro bono support and service.

Since 2010, defendants involved in the Butler County program are offered free education seminars, credit counseling, legal counsel, communications with lenders and guidance on how to apply for appropriate loan modifications and work-out arrangements to prevent foreclosure and consumer-credit judgments. Many of the defendants in mortgage foreclosure cases have lost jobs, experienced reductions in income or suffered major life events that have interrupted their ability to meet their financial obligations. Last year alone, more than 60 county residents avoided losing their homes to foreclosure thanks to modification of loans, refinancing, deferment or other steps.

The program is a collaborative effort that includes volunteers from the following agencies and organizations: Butler County Bar Association, Butler County Community College, Center for Community Resources, Housing Authority of Butler County, Neighborhood Legal Services Association and United Way of Butler County.

PBA President Francis X. O’Connor has named 11 Pennsylvania lawyers to the 2014-15 class of the association’s Bar Leadership Institute (BLI).

The BLI helps prepare young lawyers for future leadership opportunities within the state’s largest bar association.

“Lawyers selected for the Institute get an inside look at the day-to-day operations of the association, its governance, its resources for members and the roles of staff,” said O’Connor. “Each participant is required to attend a variety of PBA meetings and events and is paired with a member of the PBA Board of Governors who serves as mentor to the participant during the year-long program.”

The following lawyers have been named as participants in the 2014-15 BLI class:

Allegheny County
Samuel I. Yamron, Law Office of Samuel I. Yamron, Pittsburgh

Beaver County

The Pennsylvania IOLTA Board has launched its “I Bank on Justice” Campaign in conjunction with its new website. The “I Bank on Justice” Campaign recognizes lawyers and law firms maintaining an IOLTA account at a Platinum Leader Bank.

Even in these times of very low interest rates, the Platinum Leader Banks listed here have demonstrated a strong commitment to the success of IOLTA’s mission, surpassing eligibility requirements by paying 1 percent, a premium yield, on IOLTA accounts. This means more funding for legal aid and pro bono programs.

The Pennsylvania IOLTA Board encourages attorneys and firms to patronize Platinum Leader Banks.

Bradford
Law Day Movie Event
The Bradford County Bar Association (BCBA) observed Law Day by sponsoring a showing of “Kids for Cash,” the documentary film about the Luzerne County Juvenile Court scandal, at the Keystone Theater in Towanda. BCBA President Daniel J. Barrett authored an op-ed column about the event for a local publication.

Chester
Legal Lemonade Day
The Chester County Bar Association’s (CCBA) 4th Annual Legal Lemonade Day helped to raise more than $3,000 for Alex’s Lemonade Stand Foundation (ALSF), which helps fund childhood-cancer research. With the help of law firms Fox Rothschild, Gawthrop Greenwood and Lamb McErlane, the association encouraged members to come out and enjoy some fresh lemonade while raising money for this great cause. A representative from ALSF was on hand for support and to provide information about the foundation. The CCBA Young Lawyers Division (YLD) and staff helped to run the stand.

Commonwealth Court Visit
On, June 19, the Chester County Bar Association and the Chester County Court of Common Pleas welcomed the Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court for a two-day visit. A judges panel presented a one-hour CLE titled “Harm Caused by Access to Court Records — An Attorney’s Ethical Obligations.” The CLE session was followed by a reception for members and judges. On the following day, the CCBA YLD hosted a breakfast prior to the court’s Special Session, which included nine cases from surrounding counties.

Cumberland
Law Day Events
Members of the Cumberland County Bar Association (CCBA) used the 2014 Law Day theme, “American Democracy and the Rule of Law: Why Every Vote Matters,” in their presentations to 750 middle school students on whether voting is a right or a privilege, and on past and present obstacles to voting.

The CCBA also participated in a community-based Law Day event at the Penn State Dickinson School of Law, Carlisle Campus, on April 21. Panelists included representatives from the Carlisle Area League of Women Voters, the Department of Political Science at Dickinson College and the county Office of Elections and Voter Registration. The panelists discussed portions of the documentary “Electoral Dysfunction” and the history of voting in Cumberland County, the commonwealth and the nation. A question-and-answer session provided audience members with the opportunity to have their voting concerns addressed by the panelists. Issues such as the Pennsylvania Voter ID Law continue to take center stage in discussions on elections and voter rights.

Dauphin
Recognition for Pro Bono Guardian Monitors
Dauphin County Court of Common Pleas President Judge Todd A. Hoover recently hosted a courthouse breakfast to thank the county’s pro bono guardian monitors for their dedication and service. The monitors serve as “eyes and ears” for the Orphans’ Court to assure that incapacitated persons with a court-appointed guardian are not physically or financially mistreated. Judge Hoover shared that the program, which began in 2007 with 26 monitors, has grown to 70 monitors. He noted that the monitors save Dauphin County taxpayers thousands of dollars each year (Some counties use paid staff to monitor guardianships).

Hoover reported that recently, when reviewing a ward’s checkbook, a monitor uncovered a guardian’s possible misuse of the ward’s funds. The monitor reported the situation to the court, the court followed-up and a new guardian was appointed.

Monitor Pat Zucker described how she helps a 22 year-old man who suffers from severe intellectual and developmental disabilities and is non-verbal. Pat visits him at a residential private school that offers therapeutic resources and support, as he requires constant care. The man is the eldest of five children and for 17 years his family lovingly cared for him at home. They are frequent visitors to the school.

Pat expressed her appreciation for the opportunity to serve this amazing family.

The Dauphin County pro bono guardian monitor program welcomes new volunteer attorneys and paralegals. The court provides monitors with an introductory DVD, interview checklists, step-by-step instructions and other resources. Monitors are assigned two cases each. Once a year, the assigned monitor visits the guardian and ward, reviews financial records and reports back to the court. Participating attorneys continue to monitor their assigned cases until otherwise notified, perhaps for years. For more infor-

Erie Law Day

Participating in Erie County Bar Association Law Day activities were (from left) Law Day Chair Michael A. Fetzner, columnist Matthew Dowd and ECBA President Edwin W. Smith

The Erie County Bar Association (ECBA) celebrated its annual Law Day luncheon with keynote speaker and nationally known analyst Matthew Dowd. Dowd presented “Reflections on an Evolving Nation: Fundamental Shifts in America’s Politics, Economics, Laws, Concepts, of Privacy, and Their Effect Upon our Lives.” Then-PBA President Forest N. Myers provided his message on the significance of Law Day to the over 530 in attendance. One of the largest groups of students (who came from nine local high schools and four area colleges) in local Law Day history enjoyed a special “Students and Teachers Program” with Dowd prior to the luncheon. Ed Mead received the 2014 Liberty Bell Award, John B. Enders received the Pro-Bono Award and James F. Toohey received the 2014 Chancellor of the Bar Award.

First ‘Wills for Heroes’ Program in Northwest Pa.

The ECBA partnered with Gannon University to offer a “Wills for Heroes” program on Saturday, April 12. “Wills for Heroes” provides free wills, living wills, health care and financial powers of attorney to area first responders and their spouses/partners. Students from Gannon University’s Legal Studies Department assisted with clerical support and served as notary witnesses. Event organizer Melissa H. Shirey noted, “Volunteer attorneys from the ECBA are very supportive of the ‘Wills for Heroes’ program and its goal of ensuring that first responders have a will and other important estate documents prepared. We recognize the commitment that they make to our community every day, with great personal risk and sacrifice. By helping first responders plan now, the bar association hopes to help protect those who protect us.”

Law Day 5K

April 26 brought crisp air, spring sun and over 200 runners for the ECBA’s Annual Law Day 5K. The race raised more than $12,000 for the Erie County Bar Association’s Attorneys & Kids Together Program, which supports the educational needs of homeless students, and the Runners Club Scholarship Fund.

‘Teach A Geezer’ Event

On March 20, the ECBA Young Lawyers Division and the Technology Committee held its first “Teach A Geezer” Event, which provided an opportunity for attorneys of all ages to meet and mingle while learning about new technology and devices that can help them professionally, including laptops, iPads and smartphones.

Lackawanna Annual Interfaith Service

More than 100 members of the Lackawanna Bar Association (LBA) attended the LBA’s 7th Annual Interfaith Service and luncheon. Members of various faith communities, the judiciary and the bar association delivered remarks, prayers and scripture readings. The service focused on the 2014 Law Day theme, “American Democracy and the Rule of Law: Why Every Vote Matters.” The keynote address was delivered by Lackawanna County Assistant District Attorney William J. Fisher, who received a standing ovation at the conclusion of his address. Robert Sheils Jr. paid tribute to his late daughter-in-law and former Interfaith Service co-chair, Sheila Flanagan-Sheils, who died last year at the age of 36.

‘Learning From D-Day: Lessons for Lawyers’

On June 6, the 70th Anniversary of D-Day, the LBA partnered with the Everhart Museum in Scranton to present “Learning From D-Day: Lessons for Lawyers.” The one-credit CLE seminar took place during a guided tour of the exhibit, “D-Day 1944: Accept Nothing Less Than Full Victory!” The exhibit featured historical collections and photographs, as well as historical artifacts from regional leaders. More than 50 lawyers moved through three areas of the gallery where the focus included “Preparation,” “Invasion” and “Aftermath.” Attendees used iPads to view photographs, telegrams and historical memorabilia owned by members of the bar association. The use of technology demonstrated the planning resources used today and compared them to the two-year planning period and execution of the D-Day invasion. Local attorneys participated in the presentation, sharing as historians and family members of the men and women who served and those who supported the war effort from home. The following county attorneys served as presenters: author and historian Fran Sempa, World War II memorabilia enthusiast John Krisa, Paul Keeler, Marion Munley and Patrick Walsh. LBA President Malcolm MacGregor served as moderator. The tour and seminar were planned by LBA executive director Lee Ann Munley and Leah Kane of Exhibit A.

Luzerne

Mortgage Foreclosure Diversionary CLE Program

The Wilkes-Barre Law and Library Association (the bar association of Luzerne County/WB-LLA) recently held a CLE program at the Luzerne County courthouse that was presented by Luzerne County Judge Lesa S. Gelb and participating volunteers of the County’s Mortgage Foreclosure Diversionary Program, which was adopted by the court to help save the homes of financially overwhelmed mortgage borrowers. Although the bar association has been an approved CLE provider since the 1990s and has been hosting programs for close to two decades, 63 lawyers attended this program, breaking all association attendance records for CLEs.

CLE with National Park Service

The Wilkes-Barre Law & Library Association (the bar association of Luzerne County/WB-LLA), the Lackawanna Bar Association, the Federal Bar Association Middle District of Pennsylvania Chapter and the 3rd Circuit Bar Association partnered with the National Park Service for a CLE program at the Steamtown National Historic Site in Scranton. The program featured as its principal presenters, lawyer and U.S. Congressman Matthew A. Cartwright and Judge Thomas I. Vanaskie of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Other presenters and program planners included Attorney Joseph F. Cimini, University of Scranton associate professor and a trustee and past president of the Lackawanna Historical Society; R. Tompkins*, which involved the famous Pennsylvania train “The Ashley Special.” Educational materials for the program were donated by Thomson Reuters and its West Academic Publishing division.

Lycoming
It was a busy spring for the Lycoming Law Association (LLA). The LLA offices moved to a larger space, where they are now able to offer state-of-the art technology and CLE training for up to 45 persons. The Pennsylvania Bar Association brought its Avoiding Legal Malpractice Seminar to the new facilities this year and the response was terrific.

Executive Director Jessica Engel celebrated 10 years with the association and was recognized at the open house held to show off the new offices.

LLA President Thomas Waffenschmidt, who has practiced in Williamsport for 24 years, took the oath to become a U.S. citizen. Tom also served as keynote speaker at the naturalization ceremony.

The LLA held its annual Law Day Essay and Art Event on May 2, with outstanding entries by local students from K-12, and Mock Trial awards were also presented. Skip Greevy, winner of the LLA’s 3rd Annual William E. Nichols Community Service Award, designated the beneficiaries of his monetary prize at Law Day to four local charities.

Monroe
Support for Legal Services
On May 21, members of the Monroe County Bar Association (MCBA) voted to provide North Penn Legal Services (NPLS) with a donation of nearly $80,000. Legal aid agencies across the state have continued to see diminishing income over the past years, largely due to a reduction in IOLTA grants. IOLTA grants are a major funding source for the nonprofit legal aid agencies in the state and they are funded by interest earned on lawyers IOLTA accounts. Unfortunately, the current low-interest rates on these accounts have resulted in smaller grants to fund the legal aid agencies. NPLS, the local legal aid agency that supports the county is going into their next fiscal year with a budget deficit of more than $80,000. This donation will fund a full-time staff attorney and a part-time support-staff person for one year.

David Trevaskis, PBA pro-bono coordinator remarked, “This is the largest gift from a bar this size to North Penn and highlights the partnership between the local bar and the local legal aid provider, a partnership that is at the heart of the PBA model pro bono initiative.”

The MCBA and North Penn Legal Services have a long-standing relationship. Monroe County has had an NPLS office for more than 25 years and the MCBA has been working with them formally for more than 10 years, ever since the MCBA instituted its first pro bono lawyer referral program. Vicki Coyle, NPLS executive director, said, “The Monroe County Bar Association has put its money firmly behind its values. North Penn Legal Services has been proud to work with the association over the years in the development of a pro bono referral program. The MCBA shows a strong commitment to our clients, who are those denied access to justice due to poverty, or vulnerabilities such as lack of education, language access or disabilities. As our funding continues to decrease and we face deficit budgets year after year, meaningful donations such as these reaffirm to my staff that their work is valued. I am most grateful.”

In addition to the financial contribution to NPLS, the members of the MCBA are stepping up their individual efforts to provide pro bono services through the NPLS’ formal Pro Bono Referral Program. Since the program’s inception, the association has encouraged members to take on cases in their respective legal practice areas. With the additional funding, NPLS will be able to devote time to grow the referral program, thereby helping more community members.

Members of the Monroe County Bar Association joined in the celebration as David Trevaskis, PBA pro bono coordinator, presented Kevin Hardy with a PBA Pro Bono award at the May 21 member meeting. Hardy has been an active member of the association’s Pro Bono Committee, participating at the committee level and working closely with NPLS, taking on many cases through the formal referral program and supporting the MCBA initiative to provide financial support to NPLS.

Montgomery
Young Lawyers Month of Service
Officers and volunteers from the Montgomery Bar Association’s (MBA) Young Lawyers Section (YLS) rolled up their sleeves to serve Saturday morning breakfast to nearly 150 people at the Grace and Cecil Bean Soup Kitchen in Norristown each week during the month of May. Those unable to volunteer time were asked to donate gift cards to food stores. YLS Chair William G. Roark indicated that he hopes to see the section’s inaugural “Month of Service” initiative blossom into an annual tradition. This year’s soup-kitchen campaign is just one of several community-outreach projects spearheaded by the MBA YLS. Other projects included a Martin Luther King Day “Extreme Home Makeover,” held in conjunction with the Sauderton-based Keystone Opportunity Center; hosting the High School Mock Trial Competitions; volunteering for the MBA’s award-winning Courting Art program and participating in “Wills for Heroes” events.

Tioga
Law Day Celebration
The Tioga County Bar Association invited students from area high school mock trial teams and their coaches, faculty advisors and other supporters to join the members... of the bar in a Law Day celebration at the Tioga County Courthouse. The events included acknowledgement of the significant efforts put forth by all of the students, and an induction ceremony for the newest member of the Tioga County Bar Association, Ashley Nichols, who is a law clerk for Pennsylvania Superior Court Judge Sallie Updyke Mundy.

York
Presidents’ Breakfast
The York County Bar Association/York County Bar Foundation (YCBA/YCBF) held its second annual Presidents’ Breakfast on May 13. Former and current bar association and foundation board presidents gathered for an update on the organization’s operations and to provide input on future plans.

Law Mentoring Program
The YCBF, in conjunction with the York County Alliance for Learning, sponsored a law mentoring program for high school juniors and seniors. Walt Tilley and Leigh Dalton created and led the program for 20 students from nine school districts. The closing program on May 15 was a mock trial with the Judge Thomas H. Kelley VI of the York County Court of Common Pleas presiding, and parents and guests serving as jurors. The mock trial was based on an actual murder case tried in England in the 1930s. The outcome of the actual case was revealed to the students after the mock trial jury rendered its “verdict.” In earlier sessions, the students learned to write a will, form a business, negotiate a real estate contract and do legal research.

Pro Bono Coordinator
Laura L. Smith has joined the YCBA/YCBF as pro bono coordinator. She will be responsible for developing and managing a range of volunteer projects, recruiting and supervising legal volunteers, directing the placement of pro bono cases, developing pro bono recruitment and training materials and developing partnership opportunities. Smith, who has been involved in the York County legal and non-profit communities since returning to the area as a legal practitioner in 2008, was recently nominated for a PBA Pro Bono Award and was a recipient of the YCBA's 2012 Outstanding Member Award and YCBF’s 2012 Pro Bono Service Award.

Law Day Celebration
Nearly 170 people attended the YCBA/YCBF’s 2014 Law Day luncheon on May 1. Highlights of the event included featured speaker Pedro A. Cortés, former secretary of the Commonwealth; the presentation of the Liberty Bell Award; announcement of the winners of the essay and bumper-sticker contests and presentation of awards to the Mock Trial first- and second-place teams. The luncheon and programs were organized by a committee of the YCBF, co-chaired by Jennifer A. Galloway and Devon M. Myers. Robert J. Woods, executive director of the United Way of York County and last year’s recipient, presented the Liberty Bell Award to Delaine Toerper.
