Fisher also serves as Central Pennsylvania coordinator manager, training coordinators in other counties. In addition to her own events, she regularly assists in Lebanon, Adams, Lancaster and other local counties. She has held numerous events for local first responders and through her events has provided over 500 free estate planning documents for these deserving individuals.

Fisher has assisted in organizing and coordinating events that fall within the estates practice area. She assists with basic estate questions, but relies on the other attorney volunteers to provide answers to more involved questions.

Fisher has gone above and beyond in making sure that local first responders have the opportunity to have wills and powers of attorney. She recognizes the sacrifices that each of these first responders make to assure the communities’ safety and devotes hours every year to make sure the first responders have the protection of estate plan documents.

Fisher has taken the Wills for Heroes program to new levels. She not only holds 15-20 events a year in the counties that she coordinates, but she assists other county coordinators with their events, traveling all across the state. Fisher is dedicated and committed to the Wills for Heroes program. She strives for perfection and approaches every task with unfettered enthusiasm. She truly embodies the spirit of "giving back."
